'Access to city centre would be hit if buses were banned'

By George Walsh

AN independent body representing Oxfordshire bus passengers has found "fundamental flaws" in draft proposals to change bus routes in central Oxford.

Bus Users Oxford spoke out last week following the launch of a consultation on plans to "redesign the backbone of buses" and ease congestion in the city.

The key stakeholder group said transport bosses have gone "too far" with a new one-way system scheme that will leave fewer than a number of key city centre streets.

Bus Users and all four potential bus routes, created by consultants Phil Jones Associates, would "significantly reduce people's access to well-thorough roads" Oxford, thereby harming the city's economy, society and environment.

All four options would lose buses from Queen Street and George Street as well as High Street in one direction.

Two of the options, variations of a new loop bus system, would also lose buses from Magdalen Street, St Aldine's and Worcester Street.

Chairman of Bus Users Oxford and a director of Bus Users UK, Hugh Jagger said, "Queen Street and George Street are essential for customers but links across the city centre."

Three quarters of Oxford's population live east of the River Cherwell. Running buses from other routes to these streets would strengthen their bus links with the rail station.

"We're really bus links across the city centre are already around existing buses from Magdalen Street and St Aldine's would make walking distances between bus stops even longer."

He added that passengers would be forced to walk further distances between stops, reduced connectivity made by the redesign bus companies in the city which also warned across new retail and journey times and walking distances must not increase.

However, Mr Jagger praised the bus company's intention to consult on the first time since 1995, citing improved walking distances between bus stops for the groups affected. Two of the four options variations of a new loop bus system would create buses returning to Centrepoint.

He said, "Phil Jones has got one thing right. He realises that the right, affordable digital planning software from Centrepoint is a problem and must be resolved."

Phil Jones of Phil Jones Associates said that each option had positives and negatives but welcomed the name of transport groups.

The county council cabinet member for environment and economy, Yvonne Cattermole said the proposals would help get people around Oxford efficiently improve air quality and reduce congestion.

Dialysis unit re-opens at hospital after black alert

By Samantha McGinley

A TEMPORARY today dialysis ward has opened at Rainbury's hospital after the unit was requisitioned to help ease with last week's crisis.

The ward was dialysis unit at the (Barrow General Hospital) closed at the beginning of January in order to help for a temporary ward after (Galesford) Hospital NHS Trust closed its units to black alert due to extreme pressures on A&E services.

Most patients hospital beds were needed across the facility due to unusually high attendance at A&E, but looking out as a setback of the.

Now the former P ward at the Galesford Hospital NHS Trust has been transformed into a temporary renal dialysis unit operating six days a week.

While the Rainbury renal unit was closed, dialysis patients both north and south had to travel to Oxford or other areas for their treatment. Dialysis patients at Rainbury NHS Trust said it was "extremely helpful" to get their care "understanding".

"Temporary facilities and equipment are now in place and patients to visit will return next week."

After Thursday's closure confirmed test for renal medicine, said staff would be ready to move patients and ensure everything was ready for Monday morning.

She said "it will be welcome again for our patients who will once again have the convenience of dialysis closer to home."

"It would like to thank the entire team at the Oxford for their help and we are grateful for the flexibility of the dialysis services from both Oxford and the several units, many of whom have contributed by working additional shifts or travelling to other units - without them this would not have happened."

The move was supported on social networking site Facebook. Rainbury Hospital said "not before time" while Julie Stephenson called it "brilliant news".

The dialysis centre opened at the hospital in 2012 after pressure from Rainbury medical director Barry, who highlighted the problems her husband Bryan faced travelling to Oxford three times a week for dialysis.

Kirsty's in The House (of Commons)

It's not every day you are invited to the House of Commons for a special awards night.

But that's exactly what happened to 18-year-old Kirsty Newman from Chipping Norton, who was one of a group of students from across the country invited to attend the Association of Colleges (AoC) Gold Awards, which celebrate the achievements of college students.

The former Abingdon and Witney College student, has been on quite a winning streak, after she was highly commended by the AoC, and was previously nominated Student of the Year by her college.

Kirsty said: "It was a great pleasure to have the opportunity to celebrate the success that I've achieved today."

"The process and achievement at something I may not have the opportunity to do again and I am so grateful to have experienced this." Kirsty, who is now studying for a degree in primary education at Oxford Brookes University, was presented the glory because of her last year's award, along with Abingdon and Witney College principal Di Ratchford.

Ms Ratchford said: "Kirsty is a shining example of how far you can go with passion and dedication for a career that you love."

Day centres under threat as charity fights isolation

Six clubs to close at 'worrying and upsetting' time

By George Welch

ELDERLY day centres face a worrying and uncertain future as a funding crisis threatens to close six of the most important services in the county.

Age UK Oxfordshire is preparing to shut six of its remaining eight centres at the end of March, despite being awarded £120,000 from the county council in the latest round of grant funding this week.

The six clubs impacted are in Banbury, Faringdon, Henley, Kidlington, Wallingford, and Witney. The county council has said it will continue to operate as usual.

The proposals will affect 1,500 people who attend the six clubs.

Chief executive Penny Thewlis said she was aware it was a "worrying and upsetting" time for the club members and staff.

She added: "The charity is seeking a commitment to work with every individual affected to identify alternative options for them to ensure they are not isolated and supported."

Age UK Oxfordshire chief executive Penny Thewlis

"We take our responsibility to ensure loneliness and isolation very seriously and are determined that these changes will not undermine our efforts to address these issues, but will help us to reach more older people."

Age UK wants to maintain a high profile by increasing the number of older people attending each centre – but this falls short, making the potential for closure, and a reliance on more "one-to-one" sessions, a real possibility.

Donna Woodhead, a volunteer at the centres.

This means the charity will be consulting with staff and older people and their families about the proposals, in planning to have more of the day centres, workshops, coffee mornings and lunch clubs.

A further four independent centres have closed since Oxfordshire County Council's permanent funding cut of £10 million in August.

The council has stressed that, of the 100 day centres services running last August, more than 100 will still be running this spring.

The authority awarded more than £200,000 in transition funding to 38 organisations in January.

Transition funding is money towards making services more self-sustainable.

"We take our responsibility to combat loneliness and isolation very seriously and we are determined that these changes will not undermine our efforts."

Investigation into death of kites and buzzard in village

A POLICE investigation has been launched after the death of a rare and beautiful buzzard in a small Oxfordshire village.

A family discovered the birds in September near the village of Pyton, on the edge of the Chilterns, and reported them to the RSPB.

All the birds were investigated and it turned out to be a buzzard.

Thames Valley Police has sent all the necessary information to the RSPB and is working to find out if the bird was killed by a car or a dog.

All birds of prey and raptors are protected by the UK law, making it illegal to kill or harm them. Those found to have been killed or injured are sent to the RSPB, to be kept in a secure aviary until they are released back into the wild.

With their sharp beaks, red kites are known for their large talons of prey and food taken in the air. If you find a dead bird or a dead raptor, you should report it to the RSPB.

Owners put up a safety screen and a small number of residents were asked to evacuate as there were no any signs of gas.

Specialist fire fighting equipment was used to raise the main tank allowing engineers to close the gas leak and prevent it from leaking the surrounding roads.

The damaged storage vessel was removed by gas engineers before the area was declared safe.

Riding to box office records

A STAGE production of the internationally renowned War Horse had opened cheaply at the list as it broke box office records recently.

The National Theatre's award-winning production of a play and its horse during the First World War smashed records to become the biggest-selling show ever at the three Theatre Royal Drury Lane between December 11 and January 3.

Lee Duffy general manager of the three Theatre Royal, said: "A total of 47,884 people came in to see the show and we had a 92 per cent occupancy

"We were booked in 1818 when we had sold 100,000 tickets, making it the most sold-out production around the show from the moment it was announced."

"The reaction to the production while it was here was overwhelming."

"Audiences loved seeing Joey and the rest of the cast, from Ben Daniels, who we have inspired some fantastic feedback."

January 28th, the final day of the three Theatre Royal and The Royal Opera House, while the theatre is Christmas show this year.

Days left to choose a charity for us

By George Walsh

TIME is running out to select nominations for the Oxfordshire Guardian and The Oxford Paper's Charity of the Year 2010.

Launched earlier this month, our appeals are now reaching nominations from you, the readers, and our partners for an inspiring charity we should back for this year.

The deadline is on Wed. Jan 28 on Wednesday January 31.

We have received a fantastic response so far, with a plethora of worthy causes nominated already.

We are looking to publish the work of a charity through the production of engaging material for our readers to beholden as of last month's theme. Choices can be based on anything from personal experiences or friends' experiences, to taking the sound of the work they do or relevance to current issues of ours the country.

Group-aided ideas, we've said. "We have already received a wide variety of entries from many different charities - some known and some that will be new to Oxfordshire's people. But we have been impressed by the level of response."

"There are so many worthy causes and our readers are clearly showing how much they care about their chosen cause."

"So if you would like authority to be helping us get your nomination in."

THE OXFORD PAPER and Oxfordshire Guardian

Charity of the year 2010

People-aiding nominations are encouraged that we are offering free publicity through the paper for the winning charity to help raise their profile and that is financial and is gratis.

Last year we supported Oxford-based Playtime with its fundraising for the Oxford's Children's Hospital and Reading.

Founder Andy Baker said: "The partnership with the paper was truly beneficial. It raised awareness for us more than we brought us to the eyes of people who hadn't heard of Playtime, for which we were incredibly grateful."

To nominate a charity, email us at nominate@oxfordshireguardian.co.uk, putting 'Charity 2010' in the subject line with a brief reason for why you are nominating them.

The winner will be awarded some much but whether your cause is our chosen one to support or not, each one will be featured in a separate article over the coming months ensuring that all receive some publicity for their work.

Rail services are a class apart

Only Chiltern praised as passengers rate southern operators

By Owen Hughes

GOULDING and southern train services are lapping behind their northern counterparts according to a recent survey.

Research conducted by consumer group Which? found that most train services on the southern region rail network lost out on this satisfaction test, with only Chiltern Railways leading the trend in the survey asked both leisure travellers and commuters to rate the train companies.

Great Western Railway received a customer score of 40% in the survey of commuters, making 36th out of 74 services, faring only slightly better with a score of 41% from leisure rail users, placed 66th of 74 services. Southern (37%), South Eastern GOV (38th) and Great Northern (39th) Greater Anglia (40%) and South West (41st). GOV is the only service ranked below Great Western by commuters.

Chiltern Railways, which serves Reading Village and Oxford branch lines, featured in the top five of both categories, receiving a score of 49% from commuters and 45% from leisure users.

Merseyrail, which operates in and around Liverpool, topped both into scoring more than 70%.

Travelers rated the services by reported punctuality, reliability and availability, standard, space, frequency and value for money. More than 4,300 passengers travelling with UK operators took part in the survey between October and November last year.

Hearing aids can do more than improve your hearing.

Following a survey carried out in 2015, by Ansonia (a market research company with 1,325 hearing-impaired people (605 hearing aid wearers and 720 not wearing hearing aids). The survey reports that hearing aids not only improve capabilities of hearing well but also improved the general health of hearing aid wearers compared to hearing-impaired people who do not wear a hearing aid. Hearing aid users are less likely to think they have the symptoms of dementia, feel less physically and mentally exhausted, sleep better and are less likely to suffer from depression.

The survey confirms what some Audiologists have suspected for some time, that hearing aids are not only good for correcting hearing loss but in fact contribute to better and more active lives, better quality of life, and better overall health.

For the hearing-impaired workers who wear a hearing aid it is reported that their hearing aids are useful for their job and that the hearing aids also increase the chance of their getting promoted, being in the right job and getting more safety compared to those hearing-impaired people who have not obtained hearing aids.

The full report can be found at www.kdh.co.uk - where

A new hearing system is just the beginning and a hearing aid system is only as good as the audiologist prescribing and programming it.

At Keith Donaghy Hearingcare we offer the best binaural hearing aid systems virtually unobtrusible fitting comfortably into your ear.

Keith will help you every step of the way whilst you adjust to your new hearing ability for some time before results for others is rather of a few months but Keith is always on hand to answer questions or give advice on getting the best from your system. The last thing he needs to do is when the time when significant assistance is needed as for your hearing aids to end up in the back of a drawer somewhere, unused because you felt that nothing else could be done to rectify any programming or rehabilitation problems.

National treasure's dream of stardom

By Samantha McGee

ANNEKE HADLAND looked on the night of the singer and television personality as CBS' Blackie coming to Britain next month.

Cilla - The Musical, a stage adaptation of the popular ITV series, comes to BAMFA next season. Just Page came to the New Theatre from Tuesday February 19 until Saturday February 23.

Katie City Hargrave plays the title role, while Andrew Lancel at Colston Street and Ben Gira at Brixton Centre and Carl Au plays Dobie. Kate appeared for four years at London's Chichester. The site is audition in the final rounds.

She made it through to the final 20 and did her final audition at Ipswich's Green Quay.

Cilla's son Robert White, music producer and writer, said: "We wanted somebody who wasn't going to be a one-time thing. We wanted someone who could capture her spirit."

"She was a real-life huge personality and amazing voice - when I saw the footage of the audition in the Chichester, I knew I'd found her."

Katie said: "When I was 10 I was shopping with my mum and bumped into Cilla and asked her for an autograph."

"I told her I wanted to be an actress - she laughed and said: 'It's a laugh initially, but I just really work hard and go for it, you'll be glad to see."

"She was a huge inspiration to me as a child. I grew up watching her on Cilla's and every Saturday night with my mum."

"To be chosen to play her is such an honour and I'm so excited to take on the role."

Cilla The Musical tells the story of an ordinary girl from Liverpool whose teenage dream of stardom led her to become one of Britain's best-loved entertainers of all time. It tells its introduction by a young John Lennon in music mogul Brian Epstein that changed Presley.

By the age of just 20 she would be known as 'Queen of the Cilla' and TV Star Cilla Black. The tickets cost £144.80, £120 or £100 to get to the show.

Moshing on menu for The Night Café

THE NIGHT Café's return to the city after a hiatus in 2011 has been a success.

Jack Higgins, Steve Martin, Carl Dineen and Alex G. Corbett turned the band's music into a hit in 2011 and were invited to perform.

Fast forward to 2013 and The Night Café is playing music from their new EP, due to be released next.

Ahead of the gig, Carl took time to talk about their music and the upcoming tour.

He said: "We started off doing indie pop songs, but we like to make music that we can listen to every day. When we first started, it was a bit of a challenge to find a band that was happening in the last year for all of us, and it's definitely reflected in our newer material."

"The new EP is a bit more of a mix of what we did in the last year, but it's definitely reflected in our newer material. Wedding Feature

The Changing Face Of Men's Wedding Attire in 2018

British wedding habits have changed rapidly during the last few years, and this evolution continues into 2018.

- The average wedding now costs over £16,000.
- The trend for capotes is falling out of favour, being replaced with trends like Chester-towers.
- Purple is the most popular bridesmaids dress colour.
- 18% of newlyweds now honeymoon in the UK and 34% in Europe.

These changes are also reflected in what the groom is going to wear on his big day. At The Cotswold Tailor we have noticed big shifts in demand in both our hire department and our bespoke tailoring service, when it comes to wedding suits.

In 2005 we seemed out not a single frock coat, and demand for morning coats fell significantly. When we did rent out a morning coat, more often than not the groom has opted to move away from traditional wedding wear, and instead replaced these with tuxedo (see picture right).

Naturally with both my bespoke and hire wear clients, there has been a shift towards more tailored, three piece, slim-fit, lounge suits, particularly brighter blue shades. With many of my bespoke clients pointing out the benefits of getting frequent use out of the lounge suit post the wedding.

Possibly the biggest trend, however, has been in the rising popularity of tuxedo. As country/country-themed weddings have grown in popularity so too has the demand for both three piece tuxedo suits, but also the more relaxed look of a pair of chinos paired with tuxedo waistcoat and tuxedo jacket. (see picture right).

This look has become so popular that in 2016 we launched an entire new hire wear range dedicated to tuxedo.

The Cotswold Tailor

The Cotswold Tailor offers both bespoke wedding tailoring and luxury hirewear. With shops in both Woodstock and Shipston On Stour, don't leave looking good on your big day to chance. We can cater for all sorts of weddings from traditional to country. This luxury informative service doesn't cost the earth either. We offer a clear price structure on our website, which we feel offers greater value for money, when compared with high street alternatives.

Tact and a gift for seeing potential problems before they arise are just two of the reasons that a Toastmaster's skill can prove irreplaceable at any Wedding large or small.

On your wedding day, you do not want to be answering questions about things or seeing arrangements. Peter York will be on hand to deal with all the questions and will act as a point of contact between you and your venue. There is nothing more stressful than having to obtain the address of guests or directing people in the right direction. Toastmasters are fully practised at making announcements when cutting guests in the Wedding Breakfast, introducing speeches, setting off the cake and first dance. Who Cares?

Introducing our care worker, Patrick.

Patrick has been a care worker with Day and Nightcare Assistance for about two years. Before this, he explored "tree-keeping for a change" because he was in the field and enjoying it. He said, "I didn't always enjoy dealing with party-goers and people who had too much to drink. The one day my partner suggested I think about working in social care. She said that because I was kind and liked to help other people and to do the right thing, it might be just right for me. And she was right!"

"Yes, yes. I like working with people and being there for them. I've always enjoyed meeting lots of different people in lots of different situations, talking to people from different walks of life and their families."

In his profession, the clients really look forward to his visits, and he tries to bring a smile to their day when they don't always have, and to help them in situations which they don't want to be in. He said, "I just give them the support that I would want if I was in their situation and I enjoy being useful."

I work with quite a lot of different clients, and people have attachments to them. The family of one gentleman who I had a real connection with, said that he was in the morning because he enjoyed watching, and that felt good. It felt great making things right for him when I was there, and it felt great that his family was so grateful. We work as a team with a client's family, so we can help me understand and communicate with the client as well as possible."

I've also spent lots of time with a lady who was often the last call of my day, and I could stop a little longer with her. She may have been partly elderly but she was cheeky and had a real twinkle in her eye. We had a laugh and she said I made her feel young again! And sometimes I met someone on their own when having a bad day for some reason and me being there makes them feel alright again. That's a real achievement!

Fun, Fitness and Parties for all ages!

Rebound Revolution Trampoline Park in Bicester, is arguably Oxfordshire's best family attraction. The indoor Trampoline Park has over 60 interlinked trampolines and boasts features including Wipeout, Airbag, Walk-the-Wall and Dodgeball. Since opening its doors in September, the park has been a big hit for people of all ages from Oxfordshire and beyond.

Not only can you bound around to your heart's content, Rebound Revolution also hosts Parties, Fitness Classes and SEN sessions, and with special offers such as After School Club (which includes free food), Disco Nights and over 18's Bouncing, it's easy to see why the park has attracted over 30,000 visitors to date. In fact, the park has proved so popular that they even run their own dedicated Free Park & Ride service during School Holiday weekdays.

The park also has a stylish mezzanine Cafe which allows parents to grab a barista style coffee and great food while they sit and watch their youngsters bounce around – most in the hope their kids will be tired out and they can have a quiet evening. Some parents even book an extra hour to make sure!

But the bouncing isn't restricted to the young. In fact, people of all ages also have a go. 41-year-old father of 2, Russell, said "I loved every minute and so did the kids. It's great fun. I'm definitely coming back and I might not bring the kids next time" he joked – or did he?

As well as Open sessions, the Park has under-6 Toddler sessions most weekdays from 10-11 and weekends from 9 till 11. The park also hosts a carer-led toddler and under-9's sessions from 11-12pm to allow older siblings to join in.

If you and your family would like to join the Revolution please go to www.reboundrevolution.co.uk for full details and booking!

Oxford Property Market and Hammond's Budget Promise to Build 300,000 more homes

RT Cooper, co-author of the book on property risk and emerging markets of Martin & Co, Oxford

Times the good old days of George Osborne as Chancellor, with his handout of billions paid to the most have wasted every new home building site in the UK with his infamous threat. For the last few years, the lowest Philip Hammond got to building a 'Redevelop the Border' initiative at his grandchild's birthday party. Hammond with what appears to be a change in housing line. Today, they appear to have taken a few with 'house building again' and the Chancellor is promising to create 300,000 new households in a year.

Nationally, the number of new houses built has topped 200,000 over the last year, the highest since the financial crash of 2008. Looking closer to home, in total there were 305 net additional dwellings in the last 12 months in the Oxford

City Council area, a respectable increase of 11% on the 2010 figure. Evidence of a prolonged period of underinvestment.

The figures show that 44% of this additional housing was new build properties. In total there were 211 new new builds built over the last year in Oxford. In addition, there were 10 additional dwellings created from converting commercial or other buildings into residential property and a further 5 dwellings were added as a result of secondary mortgages into flats.

While these all added to the total housing stock in the Oxford area, there were 12 demolitions to take into account.

I was intrigued to see some of the new new builds in the Oxford area had come from a change of use. The planning line was changed a few years back so that, in certain circumstances, owners of properties could re-use planning permission to change office space to residential use.

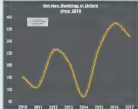

With the scarcity of building land available locally for the builders increasingly keen to build on what they have, the use of building the market, it was plain to see the number of developers that had undertaken vacant office space into residential homes in the local council area. Converting offices and shops to residential use will be vital in helping to solve the Oxford housing crisis especially, as you can see on the graph, that the level of building has hardly been consistent for over the last seven years.

Now we have had the autumn budget, Theresa May and Philip Hammond have set out their stall with housing at their local focus, including more funding for the supply side and an injection of capital into the planning system.

The biggest question is, just where are the Government going to build all these new houses? Will the upcoming new focus on the housing market by the Government be good news for all homeowners and help to fix the bubble in the short term, demand still outstrips supply for many properties and private rented homes and that will mean continued general pressure on prices for buyers and on rents for tenants.

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle.
 That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD). A CoD proves the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and is no longer your responsibility. www.dvla.gov.uk/scraping

City rocked by harsh scoreline

By George Walsh

Oxford City

A SHOCKING second half performance was not enough for Oxford City to avert defeat as it suffered away at East Thurrock United on Saturday a result that was hard to believe.

City head coach Steve Dymally said the team was "out of sync" as Oxford City played at its lowest level.

The Hopes rallied for the remainder of the half but were unable to reduce the arrears. Christian Oduro Chamberlain going down for the injury.

Oxford were back to the game just after the break when Joe McNamee found the net from close range once the referee had blown for play to restart.

The Hopes rallied for the remainder of the half but were unable to reduce the arrears. Christian Oduro Chamberlain going down for the injury.

Steve Dymally said the team was "out of sync" as Oxford City played at its lowest level.

The scoring was complete barely two minutes later when Michael Jennings shot in from the edge of the penalty area.

"It's certainly a hard result to take," Jennings said. "It wasn't a true reflection of the team."

"We were a bit out of sync in the first half, but we did it always going to be difficult for us."

"I said to the lads at half-time, if we are going to lose, let's go down fighting in the first half."
